Workplace Assessment

We deliver manual handling training that is useful and relevant. To ensure this it is necessary to conduct a workplace assessment to determine areas of risk and requirements for training.

This is important for optimal training that delivers value for money to business, but also will ensure compliance with Harmonised WHS Regulations and Codes of Practice.

Manual Handling Training

The training is delivered by qualified physiotherapists with significant experience in the workplace health and safety arena.

The training involves a presentation to workers followed by a practical session based on the requirements identified in the workplace assessment.

Workers are always involved through case studies, identification of risk factors and practical training.
